

Åland – only a few hours' ferry trip away

There are more than 1,000 horses living on the Åland Islands

Åland's location in the middle of the sea has had an impact on both the environs and the inhabitants. The archipelago of Åland consists of thousands of islands that look like pearls in different sizes. Some of the largest pearls are inhabited year round, and are easily reached by Ålandstrafiken's archipelago ferries. Ålandstrafiken offers you trips free of charge when you are travelling without a motor vehicle.

The mainland of Åland has its own charm with good road network and short distances that make it easy to discover a lot in just one day.

Horses are a common sight in Åland, and there are companies offering horse-riding courses and excursions on the mainland of Åland as well as in the archipelago.

It is easy to combine a few days of cycling or hiking with experiences on horseback.

Did you know that... Åland Post publishes several stamps every year, and offers an eldorado for all stamp collectors.
